

The Institute for Finance & Statistics at the University of Bonn, Germany, seeks to fill a position as a Research Fellow in Financial Economics.

The position is comparable to an assistant professorship without tenure. It is initially offered for a three-year period with the possibility of an extension for another three years.

Candidates should have, or expect to complete in 2019, a Ph.D. in economics or finance and must be able to document a strong research potential in financial economics. A specialization in banking would be particularly welcome.

The Department of Economics provides a stimulating research environment with excellent research funding and data access as well as attractive teaching loads.

Please apply with your cover letter, CV, job market paper, to <https://www.finance.uni-bonn.de/current-job-offer/> and two to three letters of reference sent directly to finance-hiring@uni-bonn.de by 10 December 2018. Shortlisted candidates can be interviewed at the AFA meetings in Atlanta, Georgia, from 4–6 January 2019.

Additional assistant professorships in economics (including finance) are offered as part of the Cluster of Excellence ECONtribute: Markets & Public Policy. Interested candidates should apply to both types of positions separately.

For further information, please contact finance-hiring@uni-bonn.de. Information about the Institute for Finance & Statistics can be found at <https://www.finance.uni-bonn.de>.

The University of Bonn is fully committed to equal opportunity employment and strives for diversity among its staff. We therefore especially encourage applications from female candidates. The position is offered subject to the Rector's approval.
